My seven-year-old son asked me why I didn't have a boyfriend. I was recovering from surgery and spent most of the day in bed. I told him the TV was my boyfriend, he entertained me all the time.

The TV set was old and would just shut itself off for no reason. I'd give it a few hard whacks on the side and it would come back on.

The pastor stopped by to check on my recovery and my son answered the door. At that time I was trying to get the TV to come back on. The pastor asked my son if I was busy.

My little one said, "No, sir, she is just in the bedroom banging her boyfriend."
